

FSH Bio:

My name is Nic and I will be your ARD next year!

A little bit about me is that I am from the LA area; I grew up in the San Fernando Valley which is right outside the city of LA. I don't have a ton of knowledge or experiences reflective of a LA native but I will say I have come to have pride in being from the SFV and the LA area as it is a place that truly feels like home. I went to UCSB some years ago, graduated in 2014 with a Bachelors in Feminist Studies which had a hand in shaping my experience and perception of the world and gifted me some of the closest relationships I've ever had! I was also a member of the Women's Basketball Team, I played point guard for the Gauchos for any basketball fans out there and interestingly enough I haven't touched a basketball in almost 5 years.

Some of the things I enjoy about this life are the outdoors and connecting with people. The world has so much to offer and I like to experience it by hiking, camping, traveling, cooking and asking people random questions. I'm also a big fan of astrology and the enneagram, although I don't know a ton about either I find it creates lovely avenues to connect with folks and invite introspection. One way I love to cultivate connection with people is to express and explore curiosity which is just some context if you ever find yourself in conversation with me and notice I'm asking questions that don't quite "make sense." That's enough about me for now! I look forward to meeting residents of the FSH community as well as continuing to ground myself in what it means to be a part of it.
